

Conflict of Interest Policy

The HSBC Group (and HSBC Bank plc – pobočka Praha as its branch registered in the Czech Republic) is a global organisation which provides a wide range of financial services. As such, it, or a company with whom it has an association (HSBC), may from time to time have interests which conflict with its customer's interests or with the duties that it owes to its customers. These include conflicts arising between the interests of HSBC, its associates and employees on the one hand and the interests of its customers on the other and also conflicts between customers themselves.

HSBC has established procedures which are designed to identify and manage such conflicts. These include organisational and administrative arrangements to safeguard the interests of customers. A key element of this policy is that persons engaged in different business activities involving a conflict of interest must carry on those activities independently of one another.

Where necessary, HSBC maintains arrangements which restrict the flow of information to certain employees in order to protect its customers' interests and to prevent improper access to customer information.

HSBC may also deal as Principal for its own investment account and maybe matching transactions with another customer. Procedures are in place in order to protect the customer's interest in this instance.

In some cases, HSBC's procedures and controls may not be sufficient to ensure that a potential conflict of interest does not damage a customer's interest. In these circumstances, HSBC may consider it appropriate to disclose the potential conflict to the customer and obtain the customer's formal consent to proceed. However, HSBC will decline to act in any circumstance where there is residual risk of damage to the interests of any customer.
